Introduction

1.1 Overview

This section serves to guide readers into the project. It should generate interest and motivate readers to read further about the project. It should provide sufficient background for readers to understand the project's problem statements. Usually, it is written by first describing the big picture of real life problems or scenarios and gradually narrows down to specific problems addressed by the project.

1.2 Problem Statement

This section serves to highlight the specific problems addressed by the project.

1.3 Project Scope

This section gives an overview of project activities, e.g. what are carried out, what are not and what the limitations are.

1.4 Report Outline

This section serves to inform readers about the organisation of the report, e.g. what are presented and where and how they are presented.
